Lex: Japanese students go abroad to study in various countries.

Kota: 2,860 students went abroad to study last year.

Lex: They were from 1,305 high schools. How many 〔 A 〕 are there in Japan?

Kota: I'll check that on the Internet. Well,...about 5,000.

Lex: That means that the students were from about twenty six percent of all the high schools.

Kota: In this table, the top five countries are English-speaking countries.

Lex: Many Japanese students may want to study English.

Kota: I think so, too, but some students went to Germany, France, and Italy.

Lex: In those countries, English is not a main language. About 〔 B 〕 percent of the students went to those three countries to study. Do you know why they did not choose an English-speaking country?

Kota: Let's check about that later.

Lex: I was interested in seeing festivals and visiting temples in Japan.

Kota: Those are *cultural activities. Were you interested in language learning?

Lex: Yes, but I was more interested in 〔 A 〕 . It's the second from the top in this graph.

Kota: Has studying abroad been good for you?

Lex: In Australia, I read books and learned about Japan, but I have had many important experiences in Japan. For example, I have talked with many Japanese people, and I have enjoyed the local daily life. I think studying abroad is great.

Kota: I see. I want to study abroad in the future.

Lex: Please come to Australia and stay at my house.

Kota: Sounds good! I want to visit your country.

Lex: Are you interested in studying English and learning about the culture of Australia?

Kota: Yes. And I also want to B . In this graph, that has the lowest percent, but it's important for me. I want to meet and talk with many people. After I come back to Japan, I will send e-mails to them.

Lex: Many people go abroad to learn a language, but like you, some students have other interests for going abroad.

Kota: Let's talk about that in our presentation.

Dear Kota,

Thank you for everything while I was in Japan. I had a great time with you. It was my first stay in Japan, but, thanks to you, I enjoyed it very much.

As you know, I'm interested in festivals and temples in Japan. Do you remember our trip in the fall? We saw many temples and enjoyed their beautiful gardens. Your mother bought beautiful Japanese dishes for my family. All of my family were very glad! I also remember fireworks in the summer festival. They were very large and beautiful, and I was surprised by that.

After coming back to Australia, I talked about Japanese temples and festivals in my class. Many other students became very interested in Japan. Next week, I have a chance to talk about Japan to my classmates again. I have to choose a new topic. If you talked to my classmates, what would you tell them about Japan? Do you have any ideas? I'm looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Yours,

Lex

Hello, Lex,

Thank you for your e-mail. Since you went back to Australia, I have missed you very much. Spending time with you was a great experience.

Of course, I remember well our trip in the fall. I was happy to visit many temples and festivals with you. In this e-mail, I am sending you some pictures which I took at the firework festival. I was also glad that you enjoyed Japanese food during your stay in Japan. Do you eat Japanese food in Australia?

You asked me what I wanted your classmates to know about Japan. I will tell you about one of my ideas.

I hope you like my idea.

Your friend,

Kota

次の対話の文章を読んで、あとの各問に答えよ。

(* 印の付いている単語には、本文のあとに〔注〕がある。)

Eita, Riko, and Takumi are high school students in Tokyo. Megan is a student from New Zealand. They are talking in their classroom during lunch break.

Eita: Have you finished your report for science class?

Riko: Yes. I did it last night.

Takumi: I haven't started yet, but I'll finish it today.

Megan: We have to finish it by next week, right?

Eita: Right. I've been working on it for a few days, but I haven't finished it yet. I can't *concentrate on studying in my room. Takumi, where are you going to work?

Takumi: In my room. I usually clean it before I start. I like to study in a clean and quiet place.

Riko: Me, too. I go to the library after school and study for several hours. It's also clean and quiet.

Eita: For several hours?

Riko: Yes. It's easy to concentrate for a long time in the library.

Eita: Sometimes, I sit at a desk in my room for a long time, but I don't really study very much.

Megan: Why is that?

Eita: After I study for about thirty minutes, I usually start doing some other things. I often read comics.

Takumi: I can understand that. I often get bored. It's difficult to keep doing one thing for a long time.

Eita: But you can do it, right?

Takumi: When I study for tests or do homework, I can. But it's hard to do it every day.
For me, playing sports is as important as studying.

Megan: Is it helpful for studying?

Takumi: Yes. I played soccer all day last Saturday. I was tired, but I felt good and studied a lot the next day.

Eita: I see. How about you, Riko? In the library, are you always studying?

Riko: No. I sometimes relax. I stop studying and don't worry about it then. Reading a favorite book on a sofa in the library is the best way for me to relax.

Megan: After I relax, I feel good.

Riko: How do you relax, Megan?

Megan: I walk along a river near my house.

Eita: Why do you do that?

Megan: In my hometown, there is a beach near my house. Look at these photos. I sometimes look at these to remember my life in New Zealand. I walked along the beach with my dog to feel relaxed.

Takumi: That's a nice beach. But you can't do that in Tokyo.

Megan: No, I can't. But in Tokyo, I have found that doing a similar thing helps me relax.

Takumi: Tell me more.

Megan: One day, I felt happier while I was walking along the river. So now I walk there when I miss my hometown. That has become one way for me to relax here.

Eita: I like reading comics in my room, but I don't feel relaxed then. I feel I have to stop reading and study.

Riko: Can you concentrate more on studying in any other place?

Eita: Yes. On the bus. But only for twenty minutes.

Takumi: I saw you there this morning. I didn't want to say hello because you were studying so hard.

Eita: Actually, I always concentrate because I only have a short time on the bus.

Megan: Do you feel tired or sleepy after getting off the bus?

Eita: No. And I usually study again in a classroom for another fifteen minutes before the first period.

Riko: You can concentrate for fifteen or twenty minutes in different places.

Eita: I'll try to find more places and study for a short time in each one.

Megan: Great. Then you will be able to relax and enjoy reading in your room.

Eita: That's right. Thank you, everyone.

次の文章を読んで、あとの各問に答えよ。

(* 印の付いている単語・語句には、本文のあとに〔注〕がある。)

Jun was a first-year high school student in Tokyo. One day in September of that year, one of his classmates, Naoto, said to Jun, "Next Sunday, an event called Let's Enjoy Old Japanese Games! will be held at the Momiji Center. I work at it as a staff member every month. Why don't you work with me?" Jun asked, "Who comes to the event?" Naoto answered, "It is for children from seven years old to nine years old. We'll play with them. Some other high school students will also work at the event as staff members." He continued, "If you join us, the children will enjoy playing with you." Jun was happy to hear that. He said to Naoto, "I'd love to do it!"

The next Sunday, Naoto took Jun to the Momiji Center. Ms. Aoki, a staff leader, welcomed Jun. On that day, Naoto worked as a student staff leader. Fifteen children came to the event. Some children looked a little nervous. He wanted to make them relaxed and happy. He smiled and said, "Hello! Let's have fun!" At the event, they played games, such as, koma, otedama, takeuma, and kendama. Naoto used simple words and gestures for them. The children looked happy to learn how to play games. They enjoyed the games very much. After the event, one of the children came to Naoto and said, "It was fun. I want to do it again." Jun thought to himself, "Naoto did very well as the leader. I want to be like him." Jun decided to work at the events with Naoto every month.

Three months later, Ms. Aoki said to Jun, "I want you to be a student staff leader at next month's event." He was surprised and said, "Me?" She said, "You will be able to do it well." Naoto also said to Jun, "That will be a good chance for you." Jun said, "Yes."

The next month, twenty children came to the event. During the event, Jun tried to show children how to play games, but he was so nervous that he couldn't do it like Naoto. He just read *memos and didn't pay attention to the children. Some children didn't understand Jun's words and looked bored. He was sad about that. Then, some other staff members and Naoto helped Jun and told the children how to play the games again. After that, the children enjoyed playing them.

The next day, Jun had no *confidence and said to Naoto, "I worked hard, but it didn't go well at yesterday's event." Naoto wanted to encourage him and said, "You did your best." Jun said, "I don't know what I can do for children." Naoto said, "I felt the same way when I worked as a leader for the first time. I think you will be able to find your own way soon." Jun said, "Find my own way...." After that, he thought about that *for a while.

One month later, Jun got a chance to work at the event as a student staff leader again. This time he prepared very well. Before the event, he read memos many times and also remembered the children's names. About twenty children came to the event. When the event started, he called the children's names one by one. They were surprised and felt happy.

One of the children asked Jun, "Do you remember all of our names?" Jun smiled and answered, "Of course." Jun said, "Let's have fun!" This time he paid attention to the children. He showed them well how to play games. He and the children had a good time.

After the event, Naoto and Ms. Aoki came to Jun. Naoto said, "It was great to call the children's names! Was that your idea?" Jun answered, "Yes. I wanted to give the children a warm welcome by doing that." Naoto added, "That's your own way, Jun." Ms. Aoki smiled and said at last, "You did well, Jun. Thanks to you, I was able to see children's wonderful smiles today." Jun felt very happy to hear that.
